

WHO KILLED PRINCE CHARMING?

A Fairy-Tale Murder Mystery Puzzle

1,929 names · 9 clues · 1 killer

SAMPLE CASE

The Case

The Happily Ever After Ball was the event of the year. Every character from every tale had come: princesses and paupers, giants and goose girls, and rather more wolves than anyone had invited.

At the first stroke of midnight, Prince Charming fell face-first into the wedding cake. By the twelfth stroke he was dead.

The palace guards barred the doors and wrote down the name of every guest: 1,929 names in all. Witnesses agree that two guests slipped away from the dance floor just before midnight. One of them is the killer.

The guards have gathered 9 clues. Every clue is true of both suspects. Work through the guest register, strike out every name a clue rules out, and you will be left with two. The Final Deduction at the back of the book tells you which of them did it, and the Verdict pages check your answer without giving it away.

All you need is a pencil, patience, and a sharp eye.

Before You Begin

What is a name?

Everything between two dots in the register is one name: a single name (Cinderella), a full name (Ada Finch) or a name with a title (Queen Mabel, Mrs Lark).

Titles don't count.

A title at the start of a name (Mr, Mrs, Miss, Dr, Sir, Lady, Dame, Lord, Captain, King or Queen) is left out when a clue checks letters: Queen Mabel is checked as Mabel.

Letters only.

Only the letters A to Z count. Spaces, hyphens and apostrophes do not.

Vowels and consonants.

The vowels are A, E, I, O and U. Every other letter is a consonant, and that includes Y.

Reading order.

Pages.

Page numbers are printed at the foot of each register page. Facing pages are the two you see side by side when the book lies open: an even page on the left, the next odd page on the right.

Same name, different guest.

Some names appear more than once. Each one is a different guest: check each on its own.

Any order.

The clues can be used in any order and you will reach the same two names. They are printed in a good order: the first ones clear whole pages, the letter clues come last.

Checking your answer.

The Checkpoints page tells you how many pages should still be in play after each clue. At the end, the Verdict pages check your answer without spoiling it.

Exact spelling.

When a clue names a character, only that exact spelling counts.

The Clues

CLUE 1

Each suspect's page has both a King and a Queen on it.

A King is any name with the word King in it: King Hugh and Old King Cole both count. The same goes for Queens.

CLUE 2

Both suspects are within one page of the Big Bad Wolf.

The Wolf turns up more than once. A suspect's page must be a Wolf page, or the page just before or just after one.

CLUE 3

Each suspect is on an odd-numbered page.

Use the page number printed at the foot of the register page.

CLUE 4

Both suspects are on pages between Hansel's page and Gretel's.

Hansel and Gretel each appear once. Their own two pages don't count.

CLUE 5

Each suspect's name has an odd number of consonants.

Count every consonant in the name, leaving out any title. Y is a consonant.

Example: Eileen Gardner qualifies. Lena does not.

CLUE 6

Each suspect's name ends in a consonant.

Look only at the very last letter of the name. Y is a consonant.

Example: Nell Grant qualifies. Delia Mace does not.

The Clues

CLUE 7

Each suspect's name contains a double letter.

The same letter twice in a row inside one word, like the "ll" in Bella. Letters split by a space don't count.

Example: Joy Moss qualifies. Pearl York does not.

CLUE 8

Each suspect's name begins with a letter from A to M.

The first letter of the name, after any title: Lady Nell begins with N.

Example: Harold Elder qualifies. Oliver Clark does not.

CLUE 9

Each suspect's name contains the first letter of the page's opening name.

The opening name is the one printed first on the page, top left. Skip its title, if it has one, and take the first letter of what is left.

Checkpoints

Using the clues in the order printed, this is how many register pages should still have at least one name you have not crossed out, and roughly how many names. If you are far off, read the last clue again before going on.

After clue	Pages in play	Names in play
1	7	about 1,400
2	5	about 930
3	3	about 640
4	2	about 440
5	2	about 200
6	2	about 160
7	2	34
8	2	24
9	2	2

CLUE CARD

Cut along the dotted line and keep it beside the register.

1. Each suspect's page has both a King and a Queen on it.
2. Both suspects are within one page of the Big Bad Wolf.
3. Each suspect is on an odd-numbered page.
4. Both suspects are on pages between Hansel's page and Gretel's.
5. Each suspect's name has an odd number of consonants.
6. Each suspect's name ends in a consonant.
7. Each suspect's name contains a double letter.
8. Each suspect's name begins with a letter from A to M.
9. Each suspect's name contains the first letter of the page's opening name.

The other side of this page is your clue card.

“Nibble, nibble, like a mouse”

The guards began at the palace gates. The gatekeeper swore that nobody had left since the first stroke of midnight. “Every guest who came in is still inside,” he said, “and every one of them is in your book.” The Captain of the Guard opened the register and sighed.

“Who’s been sleeping in my bed?”

Little Red Riding Hood had watched the Big Bad Wolf by the punch bowl all evening. “He was far too polite,” she said. “Wolves are never polite.” The Wolf claimed he had only come for the canapés.

“Mirror, mirror, on the wall”

The last guests were questioned at dawn. The candles had burned down, the orchestra was asleep on its instruments, and the Fairy Godmother was waiting in the hall. “I saw them,” she said. “Bring me your last two names.”

The Final Deduction

You should now have two names left. Only one of them is the killer.

As the clock struck twelve, the Fairy Godmother saw a guest run down the palace stairs and lose a shoe on the last step. “The one I saw,” she tells the guards, “has the longer name of the two.”

Count the letters A to Z in each name. The longer name is your killer.

The killer is: _____ on page _____

Now check your answer: turn to the Verdict with the same number as your killer’s page.

The Verdict

Find the entry with the same number as your killer's page. Read only that one.

- 1 Nobody on page 1 is the killer: Clue 1 rules out every guest here.
- 2 Nobody on page 2 is the killer: Clue 1 rules out every guest here.
- 3 One guest on page 3 did slip away from the dance floor, but not the one the Fairy Godmother saw. Look at the Final Deduction again.
- 4 Nobody on page 4 is the killer: Clue 3 rules out every guest here.
- 5 You have found the killer's page. The guilty guest is name 3 on line 2 from the bottom of the names on page 5. If that is your guest, turn to the second-to-last page of the book and turn the book upside down.
- 6 Nobody on page 6 is the killer: Clue 2 rules out every guest here.
- 7 Nobody on page 7 is the killer: Clue 1 rules out every guest here.
- 8 Nobody on page 8 is the killer: Clue 3 rules out every guest here.
- 9 Nobody on page 9 is the killer: Clue 4 rules out every guest here.
- 10 Nobody on page 10 is the killer: Clue 2 rules out every guest here.

Notes

Stop!

The other side of this page tells you who killed Prince Charming.

Turn over only when the Verdict sends you here.

The Truth

It was Lewis Fuller.

When the Fairy Godmother saw the last two names she pointed at once to the longer one. Lewis Fuller had slipped away from the dance floor at a quarter to midnight, taken the servants' stair down to the kitchens, and added something to the icing on the wedding cake.

Years ago the Prince had promised Lewis Fuller the last dance at his wedding, and tonight he had given it to somebody else.

The other guest, Louis Fenn, had only stepped outside for some air, and was very embarrassed to have been suspected.

The guards led Lewis Fuller away at dawn. The wedding cake was thrown in the moat, and the Big Bad Wolf, who had been blamed for everything all night, received a formal apology and a slice of something else.
